

■ ■ ■ Post-Disaster Consumer and Pharmaceutical Waste Disposal

After a fire, storm, or other disaster, pharmaceuticals, DEA controlled substances and consumer goods present unique disposal requirements. Security of controlled substances may be compromised, and damaged consumer products as common as rubbing alcohol, characterized as hazardous waste, may require special handling and disposition.

Strong has response crews able to immediately respond and service your disaster cleanup needs. We are uniquely qualified to clear DEA controlled and EPA hazardous inventory.

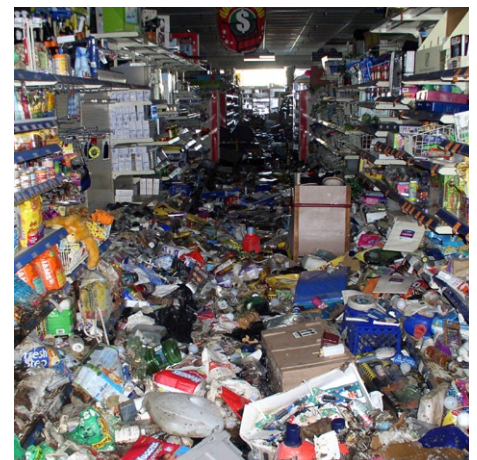

Strong has over 14 years of experience dealing with disaster response. It is our comprehensive attention to the unique and special circumstances created in such scenarios that our clients rely upon for regulatory compliance with respect to the inventories of pharmaceuticals, DEA controlled substances, and consumer goods (that become EPA waste).

BENEFITS

- We are experts at waste classification. Damaged mixed inventory requires careful characterization and handling.
 - We provide trained professional inventory classification and removal specialists.
 - Regulatory authority relationships allow us fast issuance of necessary waivers and permits.
 - Strong has the infrastructure in place for rapid disposal approvals and capacity at networks of Hazardous and Non-hazardous landfills and incinerators.
- Strong is the only DEA registrant who specializes in EPA Hazardous and DEA Mixed wastes. Companies have relied on our expertise since 1993.
 - We have developed DEA and EPA-approved programs to expedite destruction and waive certain record keeping and inventory requirements.
 - Strong work closely with local law enforcement. This ensures we can quickly navigate and penetrate disaster-affected areas.
